

CEC Catalyst Grant 2018-2019 - Call For Proposals

Criteria

The York U-TD Community Engagement Centre offers Community Engagement Catalyst Grants to support creative and innovative collaborations between community partners and York University. Projects will meet demonstrated Black Creek community need(s) and align with one or more of the CEC's core functional areas.

The CEC Mandate

The York University-TD Community Engagement Centre supports the University's commitment to build a more engaged university by facilitating mutually-beneficial collaborations between York University and the Black Creek community.

Core Functional Areas

The CEC is a pan-university resource centre situated in the Black Creek community that:

- a. Fosters academic innovation in teaching and learning through community engaged pedagogy and experiential education opportunities*
- b. Supports post-secondary educational attainment among community residents and the development of academic pathways*
- c. Enhances capacity of York faculty/students and community partners to work collaboratively on community-based research*

Catalyst Grants are intended to provide start-up funding for innovative collaborations between York University and the community. Pilot projects are welcome but for those projects that plan to continue, alternate sources of ongoing funding will need to be identified. Successful projects will be provided with some initial partnership development and project coordination support from the CEC.

Eligible Applicants

The Community Engagement Catalyst Grant is designed to support a project that involves at least one community (Black Creek) partner working together with one York University partner. Partnership, for purposes of this grant, is expected to be more developed than just signing off in support of the grant. It should involve shared planning, implementation and reporting of the project.

Any organization or organized resident group in the Black Creek community, or any faculty member or unit of York University is eligible to apply as the lead applicant for a Catalyst Grant. The CEC can assist in identification of appropriate partners if you have an idea but are unsure of a partner.

Grant Allocations

Grants are intended to provide one-time, project start-up funding up to a maximum of $5,000.

The grants can cover a broad range of ideas that respond to community need and align with CEC priorities. Successful grant applicants will demonstrate potential for positive impact on community wellbeing in the Black Creek community and ability of applicants to successfully complete the project.

For illustration purposes, a few project examples are listed below:

- A photo voice series which evaluated the relocation process of the TCHC Firgrove Community
- A development of an Community based ethics model for researchers doing research in the Jane Finch Community
- A needs assessment conducted to identify professional development needs of front-line workers in Black Creek
- A participatory research project that involves York faculty/graduate students and community residents focused on barriers to postsecondary education
- An educational outreach program to encourage science/engineering studies among community youth
- An analysis of Black Creek transit needs in preparation of the subway extending to York University

Process

Completed applications will be reviewed by the York-TD Community Engagement Centre Advisory Committee. This advisory committee is made up of university and community members who provide guidance to the over-all work of the CEC. For more information about the Advisory Committee please see www.yorku.ca/cec. Advisory Committee members will not respond to any inquiries regarding the application process.

To the extent possible, grants approved over a given year will represent all three CEC core functional areas. Applications will be accepted until June 15th, 2018. Please note that projects must be completed by March 31, 2019.

A Community information session will be held in late May 31st 2018, at 3pm for anyone who wants to learn more.
