Do you want your research and expertise to have an impact on organizations and individuals outside of York? Do you want experience working on public policy, social programming or professional practice?

York's Knowledge Mobilization (KMB) Unit and the Faculty of Graduate Studies will administer an AIF (Academic Innovation Fund) pilot project to provide funding for graduate students to embark on a paid internship research project. Graduate students must make a joint application with their non-academic partner for 2016-17.
